Experience the Deutsche Bundesbahn's BR 218 in-game in a brand new Western Germany scenery. Once the backbone of the Düsseldorf-Minden (DN) freight operations, the DB BR 218 has been retired from passenger services since 1997. It now offers passenger train services on some sections of the German railway network. The Deutsche Bahn and the Dutch operator, NMBS/SNCB, are currently restoring the DB BR 218 for a short period of time from 2010 up to 2012. It is on display at Zeebrugge railway museum in Belgium. Enjoy the history of the Deutsche Bundesbahn's V 160 family of locomotives and experience in-game the unique sound of the BR 218 in a brand new Western Germany scenery. A fitting tribute to the 60 year old, modern German rolling stock. Steam, Datagraph, Quick Drive and Trackage Check are required to play this game. Enjoy!...ExpandQ: C# timeout on very large loop I have been running a process that I need to kill after a specific amount of time. The program I have created runs a different loop every minute so it has a lot of loops in it. It has a loop that goes through and checks if a process has finished on each process. This takes about 5 minutes when it is on a 80mb file but it has to wait nearly 6 hours when processing a 1.1gb file. How can I get the program to timeout and kill the loop after the specified amount of time? A: What you are describing is process pools or task threads that are pre-allocated and maintained until the process (or thread) is finished or specified period of time passes. See Task Parallel Library on MSDN. From the Introduction: The task parallel library contains many constructs and classes that enable developers to easily implement parallel algorithms without having to write the code required for parallelism. The key to utilizing the task parallel library is to correctly leverage the underlying thread pool. When to use the task parallel library is a decision that should be based on your application requirements. That is, if you don't need to control the number of threads, or have really fast access to each processor core, then stick with an existing thread pool (and of course, with C# 4.0 and the TPL). But if you want to ensure pre c9d1549cdd

One late Halloween night, a mage known by the name of Saref was awakened by some rustling noises in his room. When he opened his eyes, he saw an ugly little devil stealing a magic stone from the table. Saref tried to catch the thief and save the crystal but suddenly looked out the window and saw terrible things Everything was burning, seething; the fearful monsters, which until recently were the festive decorations, roamed the streets and swept everything out of their paths. People ran in horror to hide in their homes and board up all windows and doors. Chaos and destruction flourished in the town. The dark forces broke free and turned everything upside down. Now Saref must win his magic stone back and overcome the minions of evil before this magic night ends. The objective of this study was to compare quality of life and health care costs in patients with post-operative tracheotomy who received continuous tracheostomy tube (CttT) compared to those with short-term tracheotomy. Data came from five Canadian provinces with the same electronic medical record software and administrative databases. Adult patients who underwent resection of a primary head and neck tumor between 1/1/2000 and 12/31/2006 were identified in the administrative databases (n = 62,099). Patients who had a tracheotomy within the first 30 days after surgery were excluded (n = 4,594). The quality of life instrument was developed to measure the physical and social dimensions of quality of life. Health care costs were calculated for the 12-month period after tracheotomy. Patients with CttT (n = 2,454) had higher rates of tracheotomy during the first 30 days of their hospital stay (25.6 vs. 22.4%, p

Dreads Long Dress]]> About: Well, I've used this as my Halloween costume for 4 years straight. It's SO much fun wearing it and my group of friends just make sure I'm able to relax and be myself no matter how many people can see me. I've got lots of photos on my blog of just that. Costume Information: Really, that's all there is to it. I went to the local costume store and got their "seaside" dress. It's tight enough so I don't slip, and long enough that I can't see myself when I'm not carrying it. There's a solid piece of black mesh underneath that I can cinch up on the sides if I get hot - this is especially useful if any of my mucus ladies are joining the group - you don't want them to drip down my face. Accessory Ideas: The big question you've probably been asking is "do I NEED earrings or something?" Well...yes. Any fun, brightly colored hair accessories, anyone? You really need the costume to shine on Halloween. That dress is so skintight, but with the right earrings and head accessory you can dress it up better than most people wearing a full on bathing suit. The backdrop this year is the Jungle Queen in the Seaside Hair match from secondlife. You DO need a headband, for using your hair to hold the bun up, but it's not required. My girlfriend took the liberty of stuffing mine full of Halloween candy and we looked like the best-dressed pair at the parade. The candy is still there after 4 years of use :) Also, I use this costume for every single party I go to through October 31st and into November 1st. I always keep it packed and ready to go, because it's just such an easy way to transport myself. It's also probably the least dressy of my costumes - so it's perfect for pre-Halloween event nights. Also, I get a lot of compliments about how well I match the dress (I look like a blonde covered with a speckled black dress, haha) Oh, and to leave a lasting impression, I bought toner at the store - you can't rip your shirt in a plan anytime! [Isn't this cute??!] Helicopter Fun! Oh yes. So last year I joined the young adult group (which is called HEL
