The season starts in March and ends in May. The video will feature the 2019-20 top clubs from England, Germany, Spain, France, Italy, Belgium and Russia. Watch: Watch Reveal Trailer for FIFA 20 - New Pass Interaction Here's What's New In FIFA 20 FIFA 20 has been out for a while now, and it's just not quite as good as the previous version. That doesn't mean you shouldn't be buying it as there's still a lot of good things that have been added. New Goalkeeper Controls Everyone in FIFA should be able to hold their breath holding the ball. If they can't, then the goalkeeper should be able to pick up the ball. Referee Changes The referees can now see the position of every single player in the box and behind the opposition's goal, just like in Real Football. This gives the player who is playing forward an advantage in numbers. Bigger Players FIFA 20 saw the addition of 6.05m players to the game, which is a 22% increase compared to the previous version. This means that you'll be using small touches and the dribble button all the more now. The opposing goalkeeper has also received a huge update and will now be able to dive less often. New Ball Physics FIFA 20 added Ball Physics to help the ball behave more realistically in-game. This includes bouncing off the pitch walls, leaving bigger holes, and creates a more realistic atmosphere on a pitch. When the ball is shot, you can now see the ball wobble just slightly before going into the net. Improved Match Day Presentation FIFA 20 also received a new presentation system that allows the game to show the atmosphere of the match, with the opposing team having its own lighting and the crowd cheering and booing. Fans can now also cheer for the official club song while watching a full match. It allows the crowd to cheer along with the music as the players run up the pitch. FIFA 20 In-Game Loading Times FIFA 20 now uses a new loading time system. As soon as you are about to enter a match or menu, the game loads in 60 seconds, which can be upgraded to 90 seconds by pressing the Plus button. In return, you'll also have a faster experience and not have to wait for a couple of minutes for the game to load in when you first load the game, unlike
