the prc is also taking countermeasures to preserve stability in taiwan. an ocean is a long way to travel. the prcs policy of ensuring the survival of its regime has been carefully calibrated to avoid overt military force. instead, beijing continues to use economic and political coercion to limit taiwan s options, as it has since the mid-1950s. some taiwans people still believe that economic pressure will ultimately wear down the opposition. others fear that economic dependence on beijing will lead to dependence on continued prcs control, and that the prcs ultimate goal is not only reunification but also the overthrow of taiwans independence. the prc continues to use the remaining options available to it.

much of this pressure is being applied through money and information, and it is in essence directed at independence forces. the main thrust is to prevent any taiwan from participating in international organizations and to expel organizations supporting taiwan in other areas of the globe. in a region where stability is the norm, the prc is adding this to the long list of irritants. by promoting this environment, beijing is imbedding the notion that taiwan should accept an unquestioning and subordinate role in the region. because the prc continues to assert its claims to sovereignty over taiwan by disallowing taiwanese participation in the rocs national assembly, anyone s attempts to involve taiwan more actively in the region are perceived as threatening. taiwan becomes the whipping boy for regional tensions between its neighbors and prc. if you wish to be on the cutting edge of technology, we have just the stuff for you! this site offers all the tips, tricks, and advice you need to get the most out of your technology. we offer tips on how to buy a computer, fix your computer, and more! visit this site and learn everything you need to know about all the topics we cover. dont forget to like us on
